Importance of E-Commerce and Shopping

E-commerce and shopping are not just buzzwords; they exemplify the spirit of today. It is e-commerce and shopping that have made the Internet popular and credit cards so essential. It is also e-commerce and shopping that enables a business located somewhere in the U.S. to have dedicated customers and suppliers in all parts of the world. E-commerce and shopping enable a retail business to stay open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. In short, e-commerce and shopping has demolished distances and flattened the globe within the last ten years.

The Internet began as a communications medium for Defense scientists and bureaucrats in the 1960s. The development of HTML in the late 1980s led to the creation of the Web and the popularization of the Internet as a communications medium by the mid-1990s. The first items sold online were books, music, film and television show videos, and software, since the first three items could be easily packed and shipped, and the last item could be easily downloaded. In fact, the e-commerce pioneer Amazon.com sold its first book in mid-1995 and began selling CDs and videos in 1998. By 1999, its founder, Jeff Bezos, was planning to sell software and flowers online.

Although many Internet companies did badly in the first few years of the 21st century, many brick-and-mortar businesses decided to go online, because they found it cheaper to set up a retail Web site as compared to setting up a retail store offline. Most commodity buyers and sellers found that it was cheaper selling and buying commodities online, because it was quicker to compare prices for goods and shipping methods. In some cases, the growth and ease of online shopping has led to the decline of brick-and-mortar businesses—as airlines and railway networks have moved their ticket purchase operations online, travel businesses that sold tickets have become less profitable.

At the Mall123, you can see the e-commerce and shopping paradigm taken one step further. The Mall123 is a virtual mall, and like its brick-and-mortar counterpart, it enables name brand stores in various categories to set up counters. You need to register with your e-mail address and a password to view and purchase goods at the Mall123. When you purchase goods from any name brand retailer at the Mall123, you create volume buying power. You also get large rebates, not just from the Mall123, but from its name brand partners. You get all this when you shop through the Mall123.

Online Shopping Safely – Tips for Safety While Shopping Online

A few simple precautions go a long way in insuring that you shop safely online. Improving your understanding of technology and getting all the information you can about the retailer you are dealing with are the simplest ways to protect yourself from fraud.

Online shopping can be done safely. Don't let the occasional news item about stolen credit card details scare you away. Chances are that the users in those cases did not take the necessary precautions while making purchases online.

The first thing to do when you decide to buy an item online is to check if you are on a secure website. An icon of a closed padlock at the bottom of your screen indicates that the site is secure. Another indication is the site's address, which would begin with 'https' instead of 'http'. This means any personal details you type – name, credit card information, address – will be encrypted or coded before being transmitted over the Internet. The data gets unscrambled only when it reaches the secure destination it is meant for. If you don't see the icon indicating a secure web page, please do not give out personal information.

Sending your personal information by email is a strict no-no. Emails are rarely secure. They can be intercepted and the information in them circulated without your knowledge. Also never disclose your passwords to anyone. When creating passwords, try to avoid obvious numbers like your date of birth, address or part of your social security number.

Make sure you have sufficient information about the retailer. Don't forget to check the contact details like postal address and telephone numbers. This proves invaluable if you have any doubts. There is no harm crosschecking if a business actually exists before you hand over your money. Also read the return policy, privacy policy, warranty information and any legal statements provided on the site.

When placing an order online, take printouts so that you have proof of the transaction. Take a print of the web page where you placed your order, the receipt and the email confirming the order. Do not forget to note down the number given to your order.

If you are an American citizen, using a credit or charge card for online purchases also helps protect you. That's because the Fair Credit Billing Act covers the transaction. Under this law you can dispute suspect transactions. If it unauthorized use of your card is established, you are liable to pay only the first $50 of the charges.

To protect your privacy, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission advises that you do not disclose personal information unless you are absolutely sure of the credentials of the company you are dealing with. It recommends that you read the privacy policy companies generally post on their websites because that tells you whether they treat your information as confidential or if there is a possibility of them passing it on to others.

These tips for safety while shopping online come to you from The Mall 123, a virtual mega store that has top brands among its partners. Shopping online safely is assured when you buy through TheMall123.com. Visit us today for the best online shopping experience.

Footwear Journey – Footwear History and Industry in the US

Footwear has a long and interesting history. It dates back to the time when man found it necessary to protect his feet from rough terrain and harsh weather. In its long journey, it underwent transitions, some practical and others not, to finally emerge in its present day form. In the modern world, it is not uncommon to judge people by the shoes they wear. Footwear has become indispensable in our lives. It is a status symbol and style statement. Hence, many organizations have joined hands to meet our need of functional and stylish footwear.

The earliest footwear was made of plaited grass or rawhide held to the foot with thongs. In North America, the native Indians used Moccasins to protect from cold weather. Moccasins were low tailored shoes, made from a single piece or sometimes two pieces of buckskin, without a sole and with a longitudinal seam on the upper part from the toe to the opening. They were decorated with porcupine spears and glass beads. The distinctive seam on the upper part of a modern moccasin is all that remains of it.

In the medieval time, 'cracowes' with their long tapering points, eventually became too long to even walk. Then came the duckbill shoes of the 16th and 17th centuries, which were too wide and flat for comfort. It is around this time that army commanders began giving greater attention to their soldiers' feet. Thus the history of modern military footwear can be dated back to this period.

In the nineteenth century, the stiletto heel became so high and narrow that it made walking difficult and risky. The 'platform heel' fashion of the 1970's had soles several inches thick. It was back in fashion once again. With a lot of experimentation in soles, heels, designs and materials over the ages, today's footwear offers comfort, style and durability. New designs constantly emerge to cater to newer looks, sports and adventure activities.

Many footwear associations work together to give you that coveted pair. In America, the Footwear Industries of America (FIA) is the national association for footwear manufacturers, importers, distributors and suppliers to the leather and allied trades. FIA's roots date back to 1869 and in the present day, it has a global presence and helps American footwear companies to achieve growth through education, research and networking opportunities. Footwear Distribution and Retailers of America (FDRA) is another trade association, which operates shoe retail outlets and account for nearly three-quarters of U.S. shoe sales. National Shoe Retailers Association (NSRA) and Athletic Footwear Association (AFA) are also important organizations which represent independent shoe retailers and manufacturer-cum-marketers of athletic footwear, respectively.

The American footwear history and industry have come a long way. The shoe and cobbler too, have been romantic entities through the ages. Perhaps, that explains why even today, it is traditional to tie a boot or shoe to the back of the newlyweds' car as a good luck token.

Footwear for Everyone

Most people, when they need to purchase footwear, go to the nearest shoe shop, examine the styles and designs available in their foot size, and make a suitable purchase. It might take you several days to go to all the shoe shops in one locality and examine all the footwear styles available in your style. The time taken to cover all the shoe shops in one city thus increases proportionately. Can you, with a busy work and home life, afford the time, energy, and petrol required for all this looking around? Let your foot relax while walking

To let your foot relax while walking, it is important to invest in the right kind of footwear. Given below are the key points that you must consider before making a purchase.

➔ Understand your foot

You first need to understand the kind of feet you have. Each one of us is unique and has different set of requirements. Check whether you have wide feet, narrow feet or neutral feet. Also consider foot conditions like hammer toes, claw toes, Morton's toe, bunions, callus and corns. The width of your foot is of key importance while buying comfortable footwear. Feet tend to swell in the evening and thus evenings are the best time to go shopping for shoes. You may want to opt for shoes for other reasons like improving posture, curing back pain and reducing stress.

➔ Material

Comfortable materials that allow shoes and your feet to breathe are of prime importance. Choose materials that can stretch or give way to allow your foot to fit comfortably. Avoid rigid materials and shoes with seams. A wide range of comfortable materials is available from soft leather, suede, cloth, canvas and brocades.

➔ Fit

Getting a good fit from a store that specializes in fitting shoes is important. Opt for stores that are serious about fits and have good and knowledgeable shoe fitters. Keep away from shoes and shoe stores where you need to break-in into the shoe. Such footwear may look attractive but will be uncomfortable on the long run. A good fit must ensure space near your toes so that you can wriggle them inside the shoe. You can also choose to get your shoes laced for a good fit.

➔ Heel

High heels can be uncomfortable while walking for some people. These tend to increase pressure on the front of the foot causing discomfort. If you come in that category opt for flat sandals or shoes with low heels up to 2 inches. If you still need to opt for heels, consider platforms or adopt the right style of walking in them.

➔ Shopping

Finally it is important to go to the right store for good fits. It may be a good idea to compare the different stores, but once you like a store where the fit is good, stick to it. Keep in mind the expertise of the personnel to help you choose the right footwear.

We at TheMall123.com have the best collection of comfortable footwear just for you. Our expert shoe fitters provide you assistance in choosing the right pair of footwear for you.

Choose the right footwear for yourself

The right footwear is very important in preventing toe, nail and ankle injuries. Good footwear allows the feet to relax and breathe, making it more easy and comfortable for you to walk in them. Given below are a few key points that you must keep in mind before choosing footwear.

Choose roomy footwear that allows for more space for your toes and the ball of your foot. The space should be enough for you to wriggle your toes freely inside the shoe.

Choose shoes that fit properly. Avoid shoes that are either too tight or too loose for you. While the designs may look inviting, remember that with the wrong shoe size you will not be able to wear them comfortably.

The occasion is of prime importance while opting footwear. Slippers, inexpensive cloth shoes and sandals made of soft leather are ideal for home wear. Soft leather flat shoes or heeled shoes may be good for daywear and formal wear. High heels can be purchased both for formal and party-wear.

Avoid high-heeled shoes, as they tend to put pressure on the front of your foot. If you still need to opt for high heels take a pair that provides more space for your toes. The optimum heel you must opt for is 2 inches or preferably lower. For comfortable wear it is most apt to invest in flat footwear. Such shoes allow more room for toes and the foot to breathe.

The material that makes the shoe is also important. Avoid shoes made of materials that do not stretch comfortably when you wear them. If the shoe is a little tight but of good material, you can ask the storekeeper to stretch the shoe for you. This may help in getting a snug fit.

Feet size tend to vary by half a size from morning to evening when they may have a slight normal swelling due to pressure put on them throughout the day. Thus it is best to choose footwear in the evening.

If you have foot problems it is best to consult your foot health professional before choosing footwear. He will help in providing recommendations suitable to your needs.

Shoe sizes tend to change with age. To get the best fit, try the feel of the shoe while standing. Walk around the store to know how comfortable the fit feels.

Avoid shoes where you may need to break in for a good fit.

TheMall123 has an exciting range of shoes that suit your foot and suit your style. With the best designs, we have a combination of the best materials and of course the best fits.

Quality Footwear by TheMall123 stores

The mall123 stores offer top quality footwear. There are various parameters we keep in mind for judging the quality of a make. To help you do the same by buying quality footwear, we have mentioned a few key points that we have gathered from our experience and expertise.

➔ Brand name

Good brands put their products through vigorous and real-time testing procedures before launching them in the market. You can thus be sure that the product is high on quality and will last you a long time, while giving comfort and relaxation to your feet. Cheap brands on the other hand, may look as good, but can cause trouble in the form of foot problems on the long run.

➔ The make

To ensure that the footwear you are purchasing is a quality product, examine it carefully. Take your time to look for good stitching, a proper connection of the sole and upper, the toughness and lug pattern of the sole, the stiffness of the upper and the configuration and type of the lacing. Remove the innersole of the boots you are trying and place them against the sole of your feet. The better the outline of sole of the shoe follows your own shape the better the fit will probably be.

➔ The material

The material of your footwear is another indicator of quality. Avoid rigid materials that do not allow your foot to fit in. If you are having to break-in into the shoe, then be assured that the quality is not up to the mark. Look for materials like soft leather, cloth, canvas etc. that allow for a snug fit.

➔ Good fit

A comfortable fit is another vital aspect of quality shoes. To ensure that the shoes are made for you and will come for the long run, make sure that when you wear them they leave sufficient room to wriggle your toes. If you feel any pressure points while wearing the shoes, then they are not made for you. If you intend to wear socks with the footwear, it is a good idea to wear the socks you intend to use while trying the shoes on. Also remember to buy shoes in the evening when the feet expand a little due to normal swelling during daytime.

We at TheMall123.com have an excellent collection of quality footwear from some of the best brands across the world. Check our catalogs for more details.
